

Saskatchewan
Strategy for Patient Oriented Research (SPOR)
Primary and Integrated Health Care Innovations Network

2018
SAVE THE DATE

Health System Integration National Policy Conference
Saskatoon SK
November 26 & 27

Single health region models are underway in most Canadian provinces and many regions internationally. In this model public health, mental health & addictions, home care and more are integrated into geographically-based primary care networks (PCN). Join us to hear leading thinkers and practitioners share Canadian and international perspectives on:

- Is integrated service delivery living up to its promise?
- What are the characteristics of successful PCNs? How are these being measured?
- Are the benefits of specialized units in areas such as mental health, public health, etc. reduced through decentralization of staff into PCNs? Are new benefits being realized?
- What are the concerns of patients across the delivery settings – rural, urban, Indigenous communities and remote?
- How do we ensure public health goals on population health are met when PCNs focus on individual health?
- What research is needed to examine outstanding issues, standardize metrics and monitor progress?

For more information:
Saskatchewan SPOR Primary and Integrated Health Care Initiative 306.966.2093